Move-in months · Partnership fit · Names to avoid

What's inside

Twelve pages, one per zodiac. Each page answers three questions using the same underlying logic:

Moving in

Which Chinese calendar months support the household, which to handle with care and the one best to avoid.

Partnership

Which zodiacs you work with easily, and which needs compromise.

Naming

Which character radicals work against the zodiac.

All three categories come from the same Earth branch relationships — those that pool or team together (合), those that disrupt or breakthrough (冲, 害, 破) and those that results in damage and conflict (刑).

How to read a page

- COMPATIBLE · NATURAL FIT
 From the teaming branches (合). Moving in during these months tends to bring good timing. Working with these zodiacs tends to click without much effort.
- HANDLE WITH CARE · NEEDS COMPROMISE
 From the disrupting branches (冲, 害, 破). Neither means "no." Moving in benefits from extra support — the right zodiac to help you move, or the right date and time. In partnership, expect a difference in thinking: working through it, rather than around it, is what moves things forward.
- ✗ BEST TO AVOID
 From the branches that cause real damage or conflict (刑). If it can't be avoided, book a consultation to seek for remedies.

How to read Chinese calendar months

The Chinese calendar used in BaZi and this sheet is not the popular lunar calendar most people follow, it's the solar-term calendar (节气历): each month begins when the sun reaches a fixed point on its yearly path, historically tracked by the direction the Big Dipper's handle (斗柄) pointed at dusk. That's why 正月 (寅月) always opens around 4 February and why a BaZi year turns over at 立春, not at Chinese New Year.

Born in January or early February? The zodiac year turns on the 立春, start of the spring season, not 1 January. If your birthday sits near the turn, you may belong to the previous year's animal. Your exact chart settles it.

ZODIAC (地支)	农历月	节气	MONTH (APPROX.)	ZODIAC (地支)	农历月	节气	MONTH (APPROX.)
虎 Tiger 寅	正月	立春	~4 Feb – 5 Mar	猴 Monkey 申	七月	立秋	~8 Aug – 7 Sep
兔 Rabbit 卯	二月	惊蛰	~6 Mar – 4 Apr	鸡 Rooster 酉	八月	白露	~8 Sep – 7 Oct
龙 Dragon 辰	三月	清明	~5 Apr – 5 May	狗 Dog 戌	九月	寒露	~8 Oct – 6 Nov
蛇 Snake 巳	四月	立夏	~6 May – 5 Jun	猪 Pig 亥	十月	立冬	~7 Nov – 6 Dec
马 Horse 午	五月	芒种	~6 Jun – 6 Jul	鼠 Rat 子	十一月	大雪	~7 Dec – 5 Jan
羊 Goat 未	六月	小暑	~7 Jul – 7 Aug	牛 Ox 丑	十二月	小寒	~6 Jan – 3 Feb

IMPORTANT – PLEASE READ

This sheet shows zodiac (地支) relationships only.

The pages describe how the twelve Earthly Branches interact with one another. They do not represent actual relationships between real people, actual outcomes of a house move, or the actual suitability of a name. A single zodiac is one of eight characters in a birth chart, and it is often not the deciding one.

Real relationships and outcomes depend on more.

Outcomes depend on the full chart and on real human factors that no table can capture: how people communicate, what circumstances they are in, and what they choose to do. Use this sheet as a first filter, not a conclusion. When something matters enough to act on, a personal chart reading settles it.

Decisions are your own.

This sheet is provided for general reference and educational interest. Any decision you make using this information is made at your own discretion and responsibility. 筑壬 (ZhuRen) accepts no liability for any outcome, loss, or consequence arising from the use of, or reliance on, the information in this sheet.
